Course Overview

- Why choose this course?

The beginners' course at Peter Sefton Furniture School is designed by Peter to give students a thorough grounding in the essential skills needed to understand how furniture making tools work as well as the importance of sharpness, accuracy and joint cutting. It's the first in a progressive set of courses and although a course for beginners, it is by no means basic woodworking - Peter covers the topic in depth.

The course is aimed at those with limited or no experience as well as woodworking enthusiasts who have been struggling at home with blunt tools and are frustrated by their inaccuracy. Students will learn how to strip, flatten and reassemble hand planes and how to bring out the best in their existing tools (if they have them), both by commissioning (tuning) and sharpening them, and will be shown what quality tools can achieve through Peter's practical demonstrations.

Students will make a dovetailed and tenoned English Sweet Chestnut letter rack using tools they've improved themselves – practicing hand skills and joint cutting. Peter teaches the course; small groups ensure plenty of hands-on tuition for every student.

There's no need to buy any tools to come on the course; we have a complete, individual quality tool kit for each student to use whilst on our short courses. Impartial advice is available to help with any problems students may have encountered at home, as well as on tool selection and buying. Students are able to try out, test and buy woodworking tools and equipment from Peter's tool shop www.woodworkersworkshop.co.uk with a 5% discount – try before you buy ...
